HEALTH ETHICS TRUST FACT SHEET

The Health Ethics Trust (“HET”) is a non-profit, non-partisan organization dedicated to promoting ethical and legal conduct in healthcare. The Trust pursues this purpose through educational programs, research and publications on best practices, and compliance program assessment and program development efforts. The Trust certifies compliance professionals at two levels and is home to healthcare’s only compliance program certification. The Trust is the recognized leader in bringing practical knowledge to bear on ethics and compliance issues affecting healthcare organizations.

The goal of every HET effort is improving overall organizational effectiveness by integrating ethics and legal compliance into an organization’s processes and culture. Our principals have addressed ethics and compliance issues in complex situations since 1980.

Related entities include the Compliance Resource Group, Inc. (“CRG”), the Foundation for Ethical Organizations and the Council of Ethical Organizations. CRG applies HET research and knowledge to issues for organizations and professional groups (<https://complianceresourcegroup.com/services/>) with an emphasis on compliance program and risk assessment. The Council of Ethical Organizations provides ethics and compliance services across industries. The Foundation for Ethical Organizations supports ethics-related causes and activities, with a commitment to programs affecting youth.

HET activities and services include:

- INDIVIDUAL AND ORGANIZATIONAL MEMBERSHIP: Individuals and organizations may become members of the HET. Individual members enjoy free audio conferences, reduced tuition for all programs, and discounts on publications. Organizational membership entitles all employees of the member organization to the benefits of membership. Organizational members may also receive additional benefits such as a day of free consulting.
- INDIVIDUAL AND ORGANIZATIONAL COMPLIANCE CERTIFICATION: The HET was the first organization to offer certification to healthcare compliance professionals. There are two levels of individual certification – the Certified Compliance Professional (CCP) and Certified Compliance Executive (CCE) credentials. HET is the first and only organization to offer accreditation to compliance programs. Compliance Program Certification is growing rapidly each year.

- EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS: HET programs deliver practical skills and information to those with ethics and compliance responsibilities. Programs are limited in enrollment and are conducted by individuals with senior corporate, governmental and advisory experience. Our programs provide the opportunity to interact with corporate and governmental leaders in a collaborative environment that is always vendor-free.
- BEST PRACTICES: The Best Practices process is an established peer review process identifying best practices in key compliance areas since 1995. Identified best practices are presented at the annual Healthcare Best Compliance Practices Forum, the only national event in which healthcare leaders, top government officials, compliance professionals and selected legal and academic experts meet in a vendor free environment to address practical compliance concerns. The lifeblood of the Forum - and the reason for its continued growth - is that it identifies actual compliance best practices that have been independently tested by leading organizations and reviewed by peers.
- BENCHMARKING: RESEARCH ON CURRENT COMPLIANCE PRACTICES: On an ongoing basis, as part of the Healthcare Best Compliance Practices process, HET surveys compliance professionals and other leaders regarding compliance program activities such as employee training, physician training, background checks, hotline practices, etc. The Trust publishes the results on its web site and in its series of audioconferences.
- PUBLICATIONS: HET regularly publishes in-house publications and has authored several other publications designed to provide advice and practical guidance to compliance professionals. These include:

The Compliance Case Study Library is a collection of articles and training tools for those charged with healthcare compliance training. The heart of the book is a collection of case studies on every major compliance topic, for any audience, and from every major sector including: healthcare providers, suppliers, health plans, labs, pharmaceuticals, and academic medical centers.

The Hotline and Investigations Handbook is a seminal HET resource that has been recently revised, updated and newly titled to reflect the additional experience gained by the HET from working with front line compliance professionals on hotline operations. It reflects various regulatory or legislative changes since its original publication that potentially affect hotline operations.

Best Practice Standards for Compliance Programs: A Manual for Compliance Professionals, which is periodically updated, compiles the results of the Best Practices Forum in a usefully organized guide to best practices in each compliance program area. It is the HET's best-selling publication.

- SPEAKERS BUREAU: HET principals and associated speakers provide keynote and session presentations. We provide broad topic coverage from general and motivational topics to specific ethics and compliance issues and topics.
